PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES.

McKinley and Reed, Whitney, Morrison, and Hill Discussed-Old Fight"-Cleveland Against Harrison, Says Old Dominion Man.

WASLINGTON, D. C., October 10 --(Special.)-Although the residents of the District of Columbia are called citizens, and, though citizens, are disfranchised, yet they take quite an interest in politics, and discuss the situation and the national outlook just as ably as the suffragans in Virginia, where every man is a politician. The arrival of a statesman from any of the surrounding States, particularly from one in which there is a political campaign in progress, is an event, and the new-comer is soon the centre of an interested group. Such a party were seated in a convenient room last night, and a well-known Virginia politician was the arrival of the occasion.

The presidential outlook, always an intensely interesting subject here, was under discussion, and the aspirants for the nominations in both political parties were turned over and under in every possible way. Reed and McKinley scemed to be the favorites on the Republican side, with a strong leaning towards Reed, who is very popular the t here, as he is in the entire East. Whit-

Who, then, will be " he was asked.

"Who, then, will be?" he was asked.

"Why," he said, "it will be the same old fight. It will be Cleveland and Harrison again. Reed and McKinley, and Whitney, Morrison, and Hill are all being pushed by the politicians, and their followers, but the masses of the people will want Cleveland and Harrison. The independent, conservative elements of both the parties have confidence in the two men, and when the conventions meet the politicians will find that the people will demand the renomination of Cleveland on the one side, and Harrison on the other. They are safe men, and the country will not suffer by the election of either."

"Of course," he said, "I want Cleveland, and I want the success of the Democratic party above everything else; no matter who is the nominee."

THIRD-TERM OBJECTION. "But Cleveland will have the third-term objection to handicap him," said

"The third term is a bugaboo," said e speaker, "that won't be regarded by the people next year. It is only a senti-ment, and a silly one at that; and there can be no more valid objection to a third term than there can be to a second term. The people, not the newspapers, nor the politicians, will settle that in the con-politicians, will settle that in the con-vention and election next year."

Very few of those present agreed with the speaker, but he put them to thinking, and they frequently referred to his unique presentation of the national contest next

Hon, Henry Flournoy and Mr. S.
P. Mayo, of Richmond, arrived here this morning. Mr. Flournoy went over to Baltimore on legal business, and Mr. Mayo was engaged at the Patent Office for several hours. Both the gentlemen returned to Richmond this evening. Colonel John B. Purcell and Mr. R. W. Powers, of Richmond, were in the city to-day, and returned home by the after-noon train. This evening I encountered quite a number of notable ratiway offi-cials, most of them from Richmond, and all of them well known there. First came Sol. Haas, late assistant to the president of the Southern railway system; next Colonel A. R. Andrews, first vice-president of the same system; then Vice-President Decatur Axtell, of the Chesapeake and Ohio; then E. D. Hotch-kiss, general freight agent of the Chesakiss, general freight agent of the Chesa-peake and Ohio; then John R. McMurdo, assistant general freight agent of the Chesapeake and Ohio; and last, Pay-master John Hancock, of the same com-pany. They were all on the wing, and in a hurry to get off. Hardiv had I got past them when I met General Superintendent M. J. O'Brien, of the Southern Express Company.

Whitney, Morrison, and Hill loomed up in the talk as the Democratic leaders who were looked upon as prominent in the race for the nomination of that party, and their popularity could be classed in the order of their names above. Whitney was by the biggest odds the man who was regarded as the candidate who could lead the Democratic forces to victory in 1896.

"OFF THE TRACK."

It was at this stage of the conversation that the Virginian remarked: "Gentlemen, you are all off the track. None of the gentlemen you have been speaking about will be the standard-bearers of their parties in the national campaign next year.
